THIRD CONDITIONAL

• The third conditional is used to talk about hypothetical situations in the past. That is, things that DID NOT HAPPEN, but you wish for.
HOW IS IT FORMED?

• If + noun + past perfect + noun + past modal
• If she had married John she would have been happier
• If I had chosen that job I might have had better opportunities
• If she had moved her life could have been different
WE CAN ALSO INVERT IT

• You can also do it the other way around:
• Noun + past modal + if + noun + past perfect
• She would have been happier if she had married him
• Things could have been different if you had helped us.
